BOB TAYLOR

Writes About the Vicissitudes That Beseet a Candidate.

The Country is Looking For the Courageous Aspirant.

En Route, June 12, 1899.—To the candidates: Dear child of Hope: You have my sincere commiseration and tender sympathy.

Thorns are hid among the flowers. Along the path you read. Thorns are in the passing hours. And thorns are in your bed.

You are "in the hands of your friends," and they are quietly working up your boom. Like Caesar, you are wearing out your don't want the crown, but you smile graciously on your Antonies, who are offering it. The more you refuse the more they press you to receive it and save your country from a wreck and ruin.

You are nervous and reticent; you fear the daggers of Brutus and Cassius. While your friends are tossing their hats in the air and shouting "Vive the candidate!" the low and vulgar "telling" pack of tales on you. They whisper around that you are weak in the upper story; that you are not altogether "the clean thing sweetened;" that you are deceitful and totally unreliable; they call you "hot;" and "bozzard;" and "mangy cur;" the newspapers skin you from head to foot, and the little whispering snapper politicians make carrion of your good name. You dare not defend yourself lest you be branded as a bully. All you can do is to smile and fight, not with guns, but with words. There are "sweet prospects, sweet birds and sweet flowers" before you, dear candidate. Millions of churches just completed need new bells, and the committee will soon wait on you for a donation, and you must "ante up" with the "dough;" there are also millions of church organs unpaid for, and of course the candidate must bear his share of the burden; book agents will darken your horizon, and it is your duty to carry a fountain pen to facilitate subscription work; campaign borrowings will haunt you, softly whispering in your ear: "Sweet spirit, hear my prayer." You must be ready to go security, and sign every kind of bond for "your friend;" you must not wince when some enthusiastic fool grasps you by the hand and twists it and squeezes it until you hear the bones pop; you must go into ecstasies when your intoxicated fellow citizen stops you on the street and puts his arm around your neck and blows your ear full of corn whiskey and tobacco juice, while he whispers to you a silly yarn which he has told you a dozen times before; you must provide yourself with Sunday school speeches, picnic addresses, commencement orations, fourth of July orations, flaming eulogies on Thomas Jefferson, after dinner talks at dinner banquets, apostrophes to "The Press," extemporaneous speeches for conventions, tributes to music, flights of eloquence on the influence of women, biquet acceptances, and side-splitting anecdotes for men only; you must have all these on your tongue—yes, verily, at its very end; you must carry an affidavit face, and when you tell political lies, do it with a clear conscience, else the muddy look in your eyes will convict you. The greatest blessing in politics is to possess the hide of a rhinoceros, thorn-proof and dagger-defying; and if you have a kind heart enameled with steel and hedge it round about with frowns and dignity. There is nothing like dignity as a protection to the candidate who has no brains. Throw sympathy to the dogs if you would be "great;" it is looked upon by politicians as a sign of weakness; and if you have gratitude in your heart, for the word "gratitude" is not in the "bright lexicon" of politics. Stern old Andrew Jackson drove the centre when he said: "Gratitude is a lively sense of favors to come." When James G. Blaine was told that a certain gentleman was opposing him in his canvass, he said, with a twinkle in his eye: "I am surprised to hear that for I can not remember that I ever did him a favor." But I think Mr. Blaine went a little too far, because when I was in politics I found in my humble career many men who appreciated honors conferred upon them, and who have been as true and faithful and kind to me in the evening as they were in the morning; and yet in my little sphere I have had my little Brutuses.

Of course somebody has to save the country and it might as well be you as any other patriots. I saved it for twenty years, but I now respectfully decline to save it any longer—mind you, I am not playing Caesar; I am only a humble citizen. In my State we have both Caesar and Pompey, can not prophesy whether it will be the red or the bald which will roll from the block. It is likely they will profit by the history of Rome and divide the empire and its glory.

There are many grave and vital questions which are now confronting the American people, and our candidates will be called upon to speak out upon them all, and the people must speak at the ballot box or liberty will perish among its worshippers. The day is rapidly approaching when there will not be a drummer on the road. Hundreds of thousands of good men who are now making honest livings by honest work will be thrown out of employment, because the trusts are localizing business; hundreds of thousands of laborers will be laid off, because the trusts are crushing the small manufacturers; thousands of merchants now in the jobbing business will soon wake up without a job, because the trusts will order the retail merchants to buy directly from the manufacturers. The coil of the serpent is tightening. The day will soon dawn when no man will dare to enter politics who does not wear the collar of a trust; and the trusts will not only control business but politics in this land of liberty. The trusts will manage all campaigns, and the candidate will be absolutely independent of the people. All he will have to do when elected will be to draw his salary and shout: "Long live the trust!" Our country is looking for candidates of courage today—men who will dare to sever the head of the serpent from its body; men upon whose shoulders must rest the duty of saving the republic. I hope you will prove yourself the man we are looking for. Very truly, your fellow citizen.—From the Illustrated Youth and Age.

SIX KILLED.

Clash Between White and Negro Miners at Cartersville, Illinois.

SOLDIERS ARE NOW ON GUARD.

Cartersville, Ill., Sept. 17.—Six negroes are dead and one mortally wounded after a clash between white and negro miners at the Illinois Central depot today.

Trouble had been hovering ever since the militia was recalled by Governor Tanner last Monday.

The white miners of Cartersville have refused to allow the negro miners to come to town, always meeting them and ordering them back. Today thirteen negroes, all armed, marched to the Illinois Central depot and exchanged a few words with the white miners. Then the negroes opened fire and the whites returned the fire. A running fight was kept up.

The negroes scattered but were closely followed, some running up Main street, others down the railroad tracks. Here execution was done, though all who went through the town escaped. After the fight four dead bodies were picked up and another mortally wounded. They were taken to the city hall, where the wounded man was attended to and an inquest held over the dead.

These negroes were on their way to the mines from Pana.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately made a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, then ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvellous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all fevers and lung troubles. Regular price 50 cents and $1. Trial bottle free at J. H. Orme's drugstore; every bottle guaranteed.

THE NATION

Looks to Kentucky to Stand By Democracy, Said Stone.

Appeal to Voters to Forget Trifling Differences and Stand Solid.

Richmond, Ky., Sept. 12.—Not since the campaign of 1896 has this city witnessed such a spontaneous and enthusiastic outpouring of the Democracy as greeted ex-Governor William J. Stone, of Missouri, here in his home county today.

It was his first of a series of five speeches to be delivered in the Kentucky campaign. His position as Acting Chairman of the National Democratic Committee made his speech doubly significant. Long before 9 o'clock the farmers began pouring into town and by noon there were between 1000 and 1200 persons here.

Governor Stone was eloquently introduced by Congressman McCrory and was given an ovation.

The speaker began by saying that the American people were on the eve of a great national contest. "The eyes of the whole country," he declared, "are fixed on Kentucky, and the effect of the example of Kentucky Democrats on the campaign of 1900 cannot be overestimated. The Democracy of Kentucky is on trial before the nation. The election of a Republican Governor in this State would have a terrible depressing effect on our party; indeed, would be a staggering blow to the Democracy of the whole nation, and at the same time would inspire the Republicans everywhere with new hope and greater courage. I cannot but feel in common with Democrats throughout the Union the profoundest solicitude as to the outcome in this connection."

ALL EYES ON KENTUCKY.

He referred to the hard fight this year in Blaine's district, where, after a supreme effort, a Democrat was elected. "Missouri," he said, "has set an example to the mother State. Those of us who learned our lessons of political faith and duty from you sent away with your blessing, are watching and wondering what Kentucky will do when the enemies of Democracy within and without are striving to disorganize and defeat our forces here. We are watching to see what reply you Kentucky Democrats will make to the universal appeal your brethren in all the other States are making that you be brave and true. Will you show less of fealty and devotion than we?" This appeal of party loyalty was received with loud applause.

Referring to the candidacy of Goebel and Brown he said: "I do not care who is Governor of Kentucky, if he is a Democrat. I have no personal interest in Mr. Goebel or Mr. Brown. I do not know Governor Brown, and I never saw Mr. Goebel but once, and that was after his nomination. I speak without partiality or prejudice. I have no share in your embroilments. I have no interest in the personal phases of the contests here. I speak purely in the interest of the Democratic party, without regard to men, and I do not hesitate from another State to speak these words to Kentucky Democrats, because the election is national in political effect, and therefore, vitally concerns the party throughout the Union, although otherwise it is entirely local."

OF NATIONAL IMPORTANCE.

Everyone knows that either Goebel or Taylor will be elected. There is no other possible alternative. Goebel is a Democrat and the nominee of his party convention. Taylor is a Republican and the nominee of his party convention. One of these will be the next Governor of Kentucky. Looking at the future, looking to the political effect of this election on the country, looking to 1900 how can any loyal Democrat hesitate as to his duty. Why, gentlemen, if there be any among you who have personal antipathy or objection to Mr. Goebel, then put Goebel and Taylor aside and look at Bryan and McKinley as they rise to view a little way beyond. This is the picture I see; that is the contest to which I am looking and appealing for harmony and party loyalty in this State in 1900. Remember your experience in 1895 and 1896. Will you repeat that mistake? Will you duplicate that folly? Will you place your State in Republican hands again this year, and thus give your enemy a powerful advantage over you when greater issues are at stake?"

Touching the Goebel law he said: "I know but little of the so-called Goebel election law about which so much is being said in the Republican newspapers. This much at least is true, as I understand it, that it was passed over Governor Bradley's veto by a Democratic Legislature. The Democratic party, therefore, is responsible for it. If it is a bad law let it be repealed. If it is a bad law it is not better to let a Democratic Legislature repeal it than to give a Republican Administration a chance to enforce it?"

BOLTERS WELCOMED BACK.

Regarding those who left the party in 1896 he thought they should be allowed to come back into the fold without the customary penance of sack cloth and ashes. In this connection he said the Democratic party is not and cannot afford to be narrow and intolerant. He referred to the L and N connection with the present campaign saying on this point: "The opinion prevails to a large extent in other States that the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company is having much to do with this controversy here, and that it is in a large measure responsible for it. As to the truth of this, I neither affirm nor deny, for I do not know the truth. I am opposed to reckless or ill advised assaults upon legitimately invested interests, great or small, in individual or corporate."

COMPLIMENTED BLACKBURN.

He finished his remarks on State issues with an eloquent appeal to all Democrats to stand by their party, and by so doing to select not only a Governor but a Legislature that would return Jo Blackburn to the Senate. In this connection he took occasion to pay a tribute to Senator Blackburn, whom he styled the Bayard of the Senate and the fearless champion of the people's rights.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—A conference of all the Democratic National Committeemen who were in the city was held in the green room of the Auditorium Annex tonight for the purpose of listening to suggestions about organization and preliminary campaign work from ex-Governor William J. Stone, of Missouri.

The ex-Governor, who is also Vice Chairman of the National Committee, had just returned from a tour of Kentucky that occupied a week. "To use his own words, he was amazed at the strength shown by the regular organization of the Blue Grass State, which is promoting Goebel's candidacy for Governor, and the weakness of the opposition. He argues from this condition that there is a disposition on the part of Democrats to overlook mere local differences, to get together and welcome all members of the faith with open arms."

The National Committeemen are vitally interested in the pending state battles, especially in Ohio, Kentucky and Iowa, and they consider that the verdict of the ballots will furnish an excellent idea of what will be the outcome of next year's national battle.

SENATOR DEBOE'S FIGURES.

The Times, He Says, Did Not Give His Figures Correctly.

HE PUTS TAYLOR 70,000 OVER GOEBEL.

Marion, Ky., Sept. 13, 1899.

ED PRESS.—I see in this week's issue of the Press, an interview, supposed to have been had with me as to the vote that will be cast for the candidates for Governor. I suppose you got it from the Louisville Times. The Times did not quote me correctly. I said Taylor would get 220,000 votes; Goebel 150,000; Brown 50,000 and a good vote for Populists.

Respectfully,
Wm. J. Deboe.

W. P. MAXWELL,

One of the County's Oldest Citizens Passes Away.

His Pastor Writes A Brief Sketch of His Long Life.

After an illness of one week, W. P. Maxwell died at his home in Marion, Thursday Sept. 14, 1899.

W. P. Maxwell was born Nov. 21, 1814, in Caldwell county, Ky., on what is known as the Blue farm. His parents were James and Elizabeth Maxwell. He had three brothers and two sisters, none of whom survive him. His parents were of that sturdy texture that makes the best possible citizenship.

In his youthful days his chances in an educational line were meager. He worked on the farm during most of the year and occasionally spent two or three months in a log school house in acquiring the fundamental principles of an English education. He made good use of these spare moments and fitted himself fairly for a life of business activity. He was always industrious and economical, and at an early age, his father could trust him with the affairs of the farm.

He was first married to Isabel Adamson, who lived to bless his life until March 3, 1864. Possibly during the early period of his married life was a time of struggle and success for him. Having a wife that shared equally in all his toils and hardships, by dint of personal effort, good management and judicious trading, he began to acquire a nucleus of wealth, which properly cared for, has grown into plenty.

The fruitage of his first marriage was seven children, only two of whom lived to mature life. One of these, Dr. James Maxwell, having died several years since, his widow and children have blessed and comforted father Maxwell in his declining years. P. S. Maxwell, his devoted and only surviving child, is well known to all the circle of friendship here.

Brother Maxwell was married the second time to Miss Joseph Ann Caldwell, of Pinckton, Ky., in 1866. She lived seven years and then left him to tread life's pathway alone.

Brother Maxwell professed religion at Bethlehem and joined the church at that place. He united with the C. P. church at Marion three years ago. He loved his church dearly and was jealous of all its interests. He was a good singer and often led the singing in church service in his earlier manhood days.

He was a man of strong character, honest, truthful, firm, noble and kind. He was truly the poor man's friend. Many a man struggling with debt has received timely aid from him and never was he oppressed if he made any reasonable effort to pay it back.

He was a man of very fine judgment. I doubt if he has ever made one-half dozen unfavorable trades in his life, and yet he traded more than most any man in the two counties, neither did he take advantage of others; it was his splendid judgment which could give a man what he asked for his property and yet could turn the same property over to his own advantage. One farm in Crittenden county he has owned four times, and every time made money on it.

He was a generous man; he was always willing to aid any one in need if worthy. He was very liberal to the church and aided materially in all its enterprises.

He has gone. We will miss him, but we believe he has entered into rest. In his last sickness he spoke sweetly of going home to see loved ones.

May his virtues be imitated by all, and may his sweet memories of the good he has done be cherished by the large circle of friendship dear to him.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

We are authorized to announce
T. J. NICKEL
a candidate to represent Crittenden and Livingston counties in the next General Assembly of Kentucky. His candidacy is subject to the action of the Democratic party. Election November 1899.

Mr. Goebel is on the mountain tops this week. His prospects of election are also taking an upward tendency.

Wouldn't Bill Owens, W. C. Pollard Breckenridge and Theo. Hallam make a beautiful choir for church use?

The chair trusts are going to raise the price of seats, and it will cost the people something to sit down on the truce.

Mr. Taylor's friends do not seem to be worried over the prospects of John Young Brown for election to the office of governor.

The Brown ticket may be composed of mighty fine fellows, but voting for that ticket is like betting on a horse that is not entered for the race.

Aguañado, like Patrick Henry, is crying: "Give me liberty or give me death," and Uncle Sam seems disposed to give him the latter if Aggie will give Otis' guns a fair chance.

We might compromise this trouble about the Goebel bill by making the three county commissioners Republicans. We are inclined to think a step of this kind would stop some of the racket, anyhow.

If some of Mr. Brown's big fellows like P. P. Johnson, Hallam and Sweeney would get somebody to knock the beams out of their own eyes, they would be in a better shape to find the mote in Goebel's.

Mr. O. T. Wallace, the Prohibition candidate for governor, has declared his intention of not being elected governor. Now if Mr. Brown would be just as bold and frank, we might get some more light on the situation.

We have no words of condemnation for the man who thinks politics ought to be purified. We think so too. But the fellows who are now crying purification, and profess to be leading a little band of puritans are as much Comanches as anybody else in politics. Some of the would be leaders of this "reform" are bolting to gratify their personal spleen against Goebel; some are bolting because they are not able to bear up under the sting and chagrin of their failure to get nominations, and some are bolting because they are the attorneys and hired servants of a great railroad corporation, who has Mr. Goebel on its "black list" because he has stood in the way of its well known disposition to encroach upon the rights of the public, and some are playing in the role of leaders in the bolt because they are not Democrats and have not been since the party cut loose from the money power at Chicago in 1896. The past history of the great majority of these big stumpers in politics is as ringed, streaked and striped in convention chicanery as any Tammany brave that follows the Tiger or Hammett that worships the dollar. Reform is needed in politics just like it is in all other things, but deliver us from such reformers as John Whallen and the L. and N. railroad.

A Harmony Call.

To emphasize the fact that they want all Democrats to "get together" next year, the National Committee adopted a "harmony" call as follows:

The National Committee of the Democratic party, in session at Chicago to consider the work of party organization preparatory to the campaign of 1900, sends greeting to the Democracy of the nation, with the assurance that the prospect of Democratic success next year grows brighter every day, and we have every reason for confidence as to the outcome. The great need now is to the party unity and thorough organization. The committee appeals therefore to our party friends in all the States, and especially in the States where elections are to be this year, to put aside all local differences wherever they exist and support the regular party tickets earnestly and enthusiastically, keeping always in view the great struggle of next year, and remembering that in unity there is strength and in division weakness. Especially do we appeal to the Kentucky Democracy to give loyal support to the regular ticket in that state, headed by Mr. Goebel, and thereby make a sure Democratic victory in the State and the return of ex-Senator Blackburn to the Senate of the United States.

You Are a Democrat

And of course, want a democratic newspaper. The Chicago Dispatch is the Great Democratic Weekly Newspaper of the Country. It advocates the redemption of the platform and the renomination of William Jennings Bryan.

There has never been a political campaign that will equal in importance that of the one to be fought next year. The republican party, backed by the money power of this country and Europe, is alert and aggressive. Flushed with the victory of three years ago it will seek by every means in its power to maintain its supremacy.

Democracy must be up and doing. They must wage an unceasing war upon their enemies. In no better and more effective way can this be done than by the circulation of good, sound democratic newspapers.

The publisher of The Chicago Dispatch, will send to every new subscriber for three months a copy The Chicago Dispatch for ten cents. If you are not already taking this great political weekly, send in ten cents at once. You should not only do this yourself, but you should induce all your friends to join with you. By a little effort you can easily raise a club of ten or twenty subscribers.

The Chicago Dispatch is endorsed by William Jennings Bryan and other democratic leaders.

IN THE LEAD.

Reasons for Insuring in the Mutual Life of Kentucky. Because:

The Old Mutual Life Insurance Company of Kentucky stands as a rock wall of protection to her policy holders. She has more policy holders in Crittenden county than any other regular company doing business in the county. She has paid more money to policy holders in the county than all the other companies combined. She was the first company that ever issued an absolutely incontestable contract. Her cash values are higher than those of any other company charging same rate of premium. She pays all claims immediately upon receiving proofs of loss. She is organized under the strongest laws of Kentucky and all her assets are invested in Kentucky. She has given entire satisfaction to policy holders under all circumstances. The company issues policies upon all the approved plans, and par-ticularly desiring insurance will find it to their interest to write or call in explaining the policies fully to them.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS AND GOSSIP.

Miles-Hale.

On Wednesday evening, Sept. 13, at the residence of the bride's father—Mr. W. S. Hale, of the Hebron neighborhood—Miss Annie Hale and Mr. Richard Miles were united in marriage. Rev. W. R. Gibbs officiating. The pleasant home of Mr. Hale was filled with friends of the two families, gathered to witness the happy union. A sumptuous supper was served, and the occasion was a delightful one.

The bride is a handsome and charming young lady, held in high esteem by those who know her.

The groom is one of the rising young farmers of the Tolu neighborhood, he is a grandson of the late P. B. Barnett. He is popular with his many friends and acquaintances.

R. H. Dean

R. H. Dean assumed charge of the Weather Bureau station at La Crosse on Sept. 1, of this year, coming from the central office at Washington, D. C.

At that place he was engaged as computer under the direction of Prof. Frank H. Bigelow since 1892, during which time he assisted materially in scientific investigations on terrestrial magnetism, sun-spots, barometric reductions, and the international cloud survey.

He was assigned to Pensacola, Fla. with a promotion, but being offered La Crosse instead, chose the latter place.

He is much pleased with La Crosse and though a native of Kentucky, proposes to be a citizen of this city and do what he can toward the advancement of its interests. He is a knight of the wheel and a Good Roads enthusiast.—La Crosse (Wis.) News-Budget.

The building of the proposed short line of railroad from Marion to Salem depends in some measure upon the favor shown by the I. C. road. While the latter has nothing to do with the construction, it is the connecting line and must treat the enterprise with favor. They were written to, and Mr. Egan, the assistant superintendent at Evansville writes that he will be down in the near future to go over the proposed route that he may judge for himself of its possibilities.

The county clerk is required each year to make a list of all the real estate transfers in the county as shown by deeds recorded, and this list shows the number of acres of land sold and the price paid therefor, and the town lots and prices. When the assessor returns his list, the price of this property as listed by the assessor and the price at which it sold, as shown by the recorded deed, are placed side by side, and this goes to the State Board of Equalization and from it the Board equalizes the assessment in the county. From September 15, 1898, to September 15, 1899, there were 235 transfers of lands and town lots in the county, and the price paid for the property transferred was $136,360, as shown by the deeds.

Of course the assessor lists the same property for taxation, and when the value the owner places upon it for taxation, and the price he paid for it are placed side by side, the State Board of Equalization can draw some idea of how we are listing our real estate, and upon this information the Board equalizes the assessment.

THE BICYCLE TRIP.

Two Crittenden County Boys Make Nine Hundred Miles in Seven Days.

Commerce, Texas, Sept. 16. EDITOR PRESS:—Please allow us space in your paper for a few words to our friends. We have been requested by a great many to write them, and not having time to write to all we take this means of writing.

We left Marion Sept. 6th and arrived here on the 14th, having layed over one and one-half days on the road. We rode 900 miles in seven and one half days and feel as well as we did when we started. Our wheels are as good as when we left; we expect to stay here a few days and then start for the remainder of our trip to Oklahoma.

We have met some of our old acquaintances out here, among them are, T. M. Gill, Wm. Pell and Wm. Gustin. This is the finest country we have ever seen.

We had a pleasant trip, coming through Paducah, crossing the Mississippi river at Wickliffe, then on through Birds Point, Malden, Mo., Jonesboro, Bald Knob, Little Rock and Texarkana, Ark., thence up to Commerce, by the side of the Cotton Belt railroad.

We would say to those boys who had that small change, we have earned it, have it in readiness for the call.

Sincerely yours,
Harry Gill,
R. C. Crow.

We had a good revival and nine additions to the church. To God be all the glory.

DANIEL

Chicago Times-Herald: "Mr. Daniel is a charming artist. Let the big stars that deck our stage look to their laurels. He is young and upward bound. Few men can better entertain."

Gov. Robert L. Taylor: "He is all right. I recommend that you hear him."

New York World: "That Louis Spencer Daniel is a genius is beyond question. Such talent is seldom seen among even the best of American, English and French actors. Being born an orator, he has made rapid and pleasing strides as an actor and humorist."
